COMMENT OF THE DAY

WHAT NOW?

WHAT is to be the West's reaction to the sudden turn of events in Syria? "If the question suggests that an entirely unexpected situation has arisen, then it has been misunderstood. Syria's swing to the left has been apparent for many months but then the rift between Syrin and the West has widened with it. With the lastest sharp turn in events it would not be surprising if a complete; break resulted.

CLUE

But what causes important than what is to be pertant than what is to be genuine what caused this friendship with the whole Middle East including, if it is at all possible, Syria. The Iraqi move on Oman in the Security Council, a shock to Britain, gives an important clue to Arab feeling generally.

America's friends in the Middle East place main emphasis on dollar aid: Egypt deserted when the dollar oil group; Jordan, a little nervous of to accept another to ensure its independence.

RASPBERRY

The question must be asked said. because no amount of alc will persuade Syria's new leaders to desert their new attachments-even though the country's swing to the left lies in its economic difficulties.

Faced with the prospect of acquiring prosperity at the expense of pride, or retaining pride at the expense of that an alliance with Soviet said. Russia not only provides best compromise but berry to its hostile critical in the West.

INSULT PUSHED BEAUCHAMP TO SUICIDE

London, Aug. 22. CUTTING insult a late evening party pushed Antony Beauchamp, Sarah Churchill's husband, over the brink to suicide early Sunday morning, his friends said today.

LADY JANE

cremated today at Putney Vale Cemetery on the outskirts of London after a 20-minute funeral service. Miss Churchill who was estranged from Beauchamp, and 30 friends and relatives attended the ceremony But London society was not yet ready to lay aside the ducsion of why Beauchamp took his life. He was found by police sprawled dead on a bed in his plush flat with an empty bottle of sleeping tablets beside him. PHONE CALLS

Beauchamp's body

His friends said the insult late Saturday night and at -least a dozen phone calls he made within the next few hours told the story of his death. Thirty-seven-year-old Michael Alexander, writer-cousin of Field Marshal Lord Alexander, recalled that he had several persons including Beauchamp at his flat for drinks late Saturday. "Everyone was talking quietly when one man's voice was heard over the rest," he said. "He was making insulting remarks to Antony, calling him a common little man and other things. I can't repeat it, but Antony seemed to take it very seriously." Diane Ashe, 22, was another guest at the 'party. She and Lady Jane Vane - Tempest-Stewart, whom Beauchamp had, dinner with earlier, received calls from him within the next few hours.

HUNGARY PROTESTS

Demands Removal Item From UN Agenda

Vienna, Aug. 22. THE Hungarian Government has protested to the United Nations against its decision to open a special debate on September 10 on the Hungarian situation, a Hungarian Foreign Ministry spokesman said

The spokesman, Budapest quoted by Radio, said the Hungarian Government had demanded the removal of the item on Hungary from the General Assembly's agenda.

The Hungarian Government considered the decision to raise the issue as a serious violation of the internal affairs of Hungary, and a violation of United Nations statutes, he said in a press statement.

The Last Peg

The Western offer of a conditional two-year nuclear test suspension, revealed verbally at the London Conference yesterday, was the last peg to be fitted into the overall package

Other provisions are for open skies, ground inspection, a ban on A-bomb production, reduction of conventional forces and armaments and a start at climinating outer space vehicles as weapons.

The four Western delegations here hope to have Nato's formal answer within two weeks. They plan to submit it to Soviet Deguty Foreign Minister Valerian Zorin, as soon as approval is rectivea.

THAT'S WHAT IT IS...THIS DECISION ABOUT PRINCE CHARLES

by MERRICK WINN

HE "Altrincham row," which had quietened down a bit, will certainly get going again now. The decision of the Queen and Prince Philip to send their son to one of the most exclusive preparatory schools in the country will surely liberate a fresh flood of unexclusive blather (dictionary:_"loquacious nonsense").

Among the unthinking, that is.... Lord Altrincham told the nation on TV last week: "He should be going to a State primary school....

Well, Prince Charles is NOT going to a State primary school. He is going to Cheam School, at Headley, Berks, which at £94 10s, a term is a very private school indeed; a school which probably has no blackboard big enough to take all the chalked-up titles.

The Altrinchamites will no doubt see in this still another sign of a clinging to outmoded methods of a liberal sign. Many of us agreed with much of what Lord Altrin- the tweedy set. cham had to say (merely quarrelling with his way of saying it). But many of us would now think it almost certainly wrong to see in this decision any influence whatever of what his lordship called the "tweedy set."

· · This is, more likely, a DEFEAT for the tweedy set. Who could have brought about this defeat? There would seem little doubt: the man who once sat at the desks where Prince Charles will sit and who, perhaps, was even taught by the same teachers.

But a SCHOOL. He will be the first British monarch-to-be who can say: "I went to school." This may seem an odd sort of progress, but it is progress. This is the half-revolution.

Father's choice

O, never mind the lords. Particularly, never mind the lords. The phrase is boys will be boys, not boys will be lords, and this is the important thing, for Prince Charles (Lord Randolph Churchill had his bottom whacked till he wiggled at Chenm — though they have cut that down now).

These are his most important school years. Three This can be interpreted years to his eleven-plus (though that does not matter much, and in any case the senseless thing may have been Consider. There is known to be a strong group abolished by then). Far more important: three years of

"Every patient who had an nene of long duration manipulet--ed the affected areas. They never finished," said Doctor Gaul, "because the injury produced new lesions, and thus the activity goes on interminably ... scarring is the final outcome, and the same holds true for adolescent acne unless the fallacy is exposed." In words of one syllable: if you squeeze your pimples, you get scars, so, hands off, or else! Worse, continued manipulations can produce keloid tumours, skin growths, which becur in sears, and are often very difficult to get rid of. Perhaps one of the worst offences committed by grownups, including doctors, against young people is their failure to understand the real and immediate importance of acne. As one. young fellow put it to me, "Sure, I'll outgrow it, but the date I've got comes THIS SATURDAY night-see?"

Kent All Out For 25 Minutes

London, Aug. 22. Brilliant pace bowling by the Middlesex Test player, Alan Moss, who took seven for 24 in nine overs, earned his side victory by 231 runs when Kent were shot out for 43 runs in 25 minutes at Dover today.

Middlesex had faced a startling collapse, but Fred Titmus rallied. them with an innings of 70. Peter Jones was the only Kent batsman to reach double figures. He made 10.

Dai Rees the diminutive Welshman who is Captain of Great Britain's professional golfers in the Ryder Cup match at Lindrick, Sheffield in October, surprised me at the Worthing tournament by his willingness to take four to one on our chances of winning against the United States. I thought these pessimistic odds. Former Open Champion Dick Burton assessed his opinion at three to one. Personally I think it is about ten to one.

The Worthing tournament was won by as many as seven strokes by Ken Bousfield, Coombe Hill assistant and Ryder Oup player, and George Low, the up and coming Enfield Olub man, and the smoothness of their former partnership left Rees bewailing the fact that he will not be able to bring them together in the Ryder Cup competition for the good reason that Low has not been chosen.

FIFTH TEST

WICKETS

London, Aug. 22. For five hours England prospered on the first day of the fifth and final cricket Test against the West Indies at the Oval today.

Peter Richardson, the Worcestershire left-hander, and Tom Graveney each repeated their Nottingham conturies at the expense of the West Indies bowlers, and when the score soured past 200 for the loss of only David Sheppard's wicket, a mammoth total seemed possible.

On the other hand, danger always seemed to be furking round the corner for the batsmen, Every time the ball pliched pulls of dust rose from the wicket, consistently encouraged the spin of bowlers. Finally, the West Indles broke

They sent back May for one, Cowdrey for two and Bailey for nought, so that whereas at 1840 GMT the board showed England 238 for one wicket, immediately prior to Richardcom's dismissal the position changed to 250 for five in the space of 30 minutes.

STAVED OFF

During the last helf hour. Graveney and Evans staved off further disaster and England finished with 283 for flye wickets, with the hope of more runs to come from the tail.

While Richardson spent five hours making 107 after taking part on stands of 92 with Sheppard and 146 with Gravency, the Gloucestershire right bander took out his but for 113. having made his runs in his own elegant style in three and a half hours.

Seattle, Aug. 22. Henvyweight Champion Floyd Patterson weighed 187 lb (84.82 kilos) and challenger Pete Rademacher, a surprising 202 lb (91.62 kilos) at the noon weigh-in today for their Heavyweight Championship fight tonight.

Rademacher produced his first surprise by his comparatively light weight. All the advance indications from his training camp were that he would scale at 1cast 210.1b.

He will still have 16 lb advantage, but his present weight is three pounds less than he weighed for his Olympic triumphs, when he complained that he had trained down too

Patterson's weight is the most he has carried into the ring His provious heaviest was 184 lb, when he battered Tommy Jackson in July.

More than 500 attended the public weigh-in.

HARD WORKOUT Rademacher's trainer, George Chemeres said: "This is just what we wanted, this weight. That's why we had that last hard workout Tuesday."

It was the first time the two fighters had set eyes on each other. They chatted for the cameramen while the scales were being adjusted. "I thirse I can win, and I'll try to do it as quickly os passible," said Patterson.

"I did not make the fight figuring to lose and I think I have a good chance to win the title," said Rudemacher, "I consider myself an old amateur. Potterson is a young pro."

Patterson will receive 250,000 dollars (£89,280 sterling). Rademacher will be fighting for nothing except the undicelosed salary he receives from his Georgia organisation—a quasi philanthropical institution call ed Youth Unlimited, Incorpora-

MARKET RECOVERS INTEREST

Pressure On Trams And Electrics

By A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

Interest in the Hongkong Stock Exchange suddenly revived yesterday after a very quiet spell of nearly a month when business of over $1 million was recorded at the close of the day.

Although the week's turnover was only up a lakh from last week, the amount of business done yesterday showed that the market had lifted itself out of its listlessness, for the time being:

New York Sugar Market

New York, Aug. 22. World No. 4 sugar futures closed three points higher to four points lower with sales of 1,381 contracts.

World futures started strong on a continuation of covering movement, but selling on technical reasons and increased hedge offerings subsequently erased most of the gain,

In the raw market, Holland late Wednesday reportedly bought 4,000 lons or Cubans. The Sudan was the accredited buyer of 13,000 to 15,000 tons of refined, part from India and part from Italy. Casablanca is expected to be in the market for end while Iran is expected to buy 10,000 tons of refined, dealers reported.
